

David Sosa

David's father died when he was at a young age and his mother was unable to sustain his education. They moved in with some family in San Pedro Sula but David did not attend school and was about to find a life on the streets. He was placed in our orphanage by some friends and this is when the change happened.

He successfully finished his high school education with a degree in business administration and a TOEFL degree in English. He started working at a major Honduras shipping agency where he has a stable job and became manager for the import department. He is covering this job with great dedication and success.

Due to his business nature David also had the chance to travel to Miami and Tampa on different occasions. He has enjoyed this privilege and would love to repeat, if he had a new opportunity.

Although with a little shaky legs he got married in a double wedding with his friend Moises Anaribe in 2009.

He also became the proud father of a wonderful and healthy boy named Derek in January 2010.

He now lives with his wife Melany in a rented apartment in a safe and pleasant neighborhood in San Pedro Sula.

David also remains grateful to the foundation and assists and helps whenever and wherever help is needed.
